Re: Screening for Alcohol, Tobacco and Illegal Substance Use During Pregnancy

Date: September 28, 2016

The 4Ps Plus[®] Perinatal Screening Tool

Substance use during pregnancy is often an undiagnosed, but preventable, problem. The 4Ps Plus[®] Screening for Substance Use in Pregnancy is a nationally-recognized screening tool that helps clinicians identify women who are at risk for using alcohol, tobacco and illegal substances during pregnancy.

Since 2003, the Ventura County Public Health Department has promoted the use of this tool through the Perinatal Substance Use Task Force and by partnering with county prenatal care providers.

Benefits of Using the 4Ps Plus[®] Perinatal Screening Tool

- It is a simple, fast and effective tool that is easily incorporated into routine prenatal care.
- It helps identify substance use issues to facilitate implementing appropriate and timely interventions.
- It helps reduce the chances of fetal exposure to alcohol, tobacco or other illegal substances that can lead to birth defects or long term health issues in children.

Billing for the 4Ps Plus[®] Perinatal Screening in the Physician's Office

Primary Care Physicians and OB-GYNs can bill for perinatal screening services using the following medical codes:
